Access to current research is essential in enabling scientists, researchers, policy-makers and practitioners in developing countries to find solutions to local health, environmental, social, economic, agricultural and food issues.

Publishers of the world's scientific and medical literature have joined forces with the WHO, FAO, UNEP, Yale University, Cornell University, and funding bodies to provide affordable online access to over 4000 peer reviewed journals in the world's poorest countries.

The HINARI, AGORA and OARE initiatives represent truly global public-private partnerships for development.
